Leading Business Software Developer Establishes New Headquarters In Garden City

GARDEN CITY, NY - nGeneYes Inc., a leading business software development and IT consulting firm, is proud to announce the opening of its new headquarters at 1225 Franklin Avenue, Suite 325, in Garden City.

“Our new headquarters in the center of downtown Nassau County will enable us to provide more accessible and responsive service to our clients,” said Michael J. Gencarelli, co-founder and vice president of nGeneYes. “We look forward to welcoming our current and future clients to our new offices.” In addition to Garden City, the company has satellite offices in Florida; Massachusetts; Seattle, Washington; and Medellin, Colombia.

Founded in 2002, nGeneYes specializes in solving challenging technology problems for smaller to medium-sized businesses. “We encounter so many companies that are having trouble making technology work effectively for them,” Mr. Gencarelli said. “However, most IT consultants have a ‘break-fix’ mentality. They end up having to come back again and again to fix the same problem. We provide a fresh, common sense approach.”

Instead of relying on trial and error, nGeneYes spends time up front to analyze its clients’ information handling requirements, Mr. Gencarelli said. “We then provide a detailed analysis and recommendations for moving forward. This includes a preliminary design and predetermined total cost estimate - not an open-ended hourly rate.”

The staff of nGeneYes has completed over 1,200 successful technology implementations for a diverse spectrum of companies. The company has won four Fast 50 Awards, which are presented to the top 50 fastest growing companies on Long Island.
